

Sub 92 >

ABSTRACT

An inscribable security film, particularly for use in the automotive sector, contains an identification medium that is capable of diffusion and is locally liberated or fixed selectively by a contactless inscription process. If the security film is adhesively bonded to a substrate, the identification medium causes permanent marking of the substrate, which ensures unambiguous identification of the object in question.